THIS DOCUMENT CONTAINS INFORMATION AFFECTING THE NATIONAL DEFENSE OF THE UNITED STATES, WITHIN THE MEANING OF TITLE 18, SECTIONS 793 AND 794, OF THE U.S. CODE, AS AMENDED. ITS TRANSMISSION OR REVELATION OF ITS CONTENTS TO OR RECEIPT BY AN UNAUTHORIZED PERSON IS PROHIBITED BY LAW. THE REPRODUCTION OF THIS FORM IS PROHIBITED.

THIS IS UNEVALUATED INFORMATION 50X1

1. A foundry apprentice received 400 crowas per month and food from the plant kitchen. There was a surplus of manpower in foundry work, consequently the excess number had been transferred to mines and construction work.
2. The apprentice attended a six month course in the basic trade school. Following this he was assigned a three month practical training period. After two weeks of on-the-job training he was qualified to apply for a journeyman's examination. If he passed the test he received his journeyman's (tovarich) papers and became a journeyman.
3. A mining apprentice received 1760 crowas per month. Of this amount 400 crowas were placed in a savings account, 200 crowas were paid to him every two weeks as pocket money, 800 crowas were deducted monthly for food and lodging, 30 crowas were deducted for the revolutionary trade union movement and 130 crowas for insurance.
4. Despite the fact that the instructors were miners and inspectors of many years experience, the quality of training was poor and the two year course was insufficient.
5. Leaders of Czechoslovak Youth Movement were chosen from the ranks of mining apprentices even though they had no interest in the organization. If an apprentice did not attend a meeting of the youth movement he could not visit his parents, and was not allowed to go on hikes and picnics, but remained behind to perform other tasks.
6. All mining apprentices were required to go to Recreation Centers. Here they were compelled to perform the same tasks as members of the armed forces. Reveille, a half hour of physical training, and political training were held daily.
